from his Wall street office. He set out after 6 drifting very deep in some places, and when to the very strongest and hardlest. On the following day Mr. Conkling related his terrible experience as follows: "It was impossible to get a cab or a carriage of any kind; none was to be had. Once during the day I had declined an offer to ride up-town in a carriage because the man wanted $50, and I started up Broadway on my pins. I shall never say so again, for after what I encountered in last night's blizzard I can believe that the strongest description would fall to approximate truth. For nearly twenty minutes I was stuck there and I came as near giving right up and sinking down there to die as a man can and not do it. Somehow I got out and made my way along. When I reached the New York Club at Twenty, fifth street I was covered all over with ice and packed snow and they would scarcely believe me that I had walked from Wall street. It took three hours to make the journey."

STRICKEN. Although he attended to business for severa days after this trying adventure his friends remarked that he did not appear as bright and alert as usual. What Russian opinion really is we probably do not know, but the Continental view generally seems to be shifting around to a point hostile to the Chancellor. The Vienna papers particularly condemn him for his rough and heartless recourse to press publicity in order to bully the ill and wearled Kaiser into wearing the Bismarckian collar. FOTHERINGHAM'S CASE

STILL DRAGGING ITS SLOW LENGTH ALONG IN COURT TO-DAY.

Additional Details and Incidents of the Great Express Robbery Brought Out in the Testimony—The Witnesses To-Day—A Scathing Cross-Examination—Facts Developed To-Day.

The case of David S. Fotheringham against the Adams Express Company for damages was resumed this morning at 10 o'clock. The prosecution had its inning during the forenoon. Fotheringham opened the evidence by taking the stand and testifying to the fact that about the time of the robbery his family were expecting some Government money from a pending French spoliation claim. Asked by Judge Laughlin of the defense he denied having said sometime before the robbery he was going into the coal business.

"Sometime before the robbery you went out to paint the town red?" [Smiles.]

"Yes, i"

"Do you remember of a conversation at that time with one of the party as to your intentions about going into business?"

"No, sir."

"In ever went wrong."

"Didn't you all get mellow at that time?"

"Didn't you talk with the clerk of the Hotel Hurst about a Chicago man then here with whom you were going into business?" "I mentioned a man named Foote." "Was any man from Chicago there that you

erty was "$33,000 cash," there was a general laugh.

J. W. Harrington, Deputy Sheriff in charge of the Four Courts, was put on the stand by the prosecution. He testified to the fact that "Cummings," Haight and Weaver were indicted while in the holdover without having gone into possession of the Sheriff.

"Did you ever see this done before in your years of superintendentcy there?"

Objection by defense overruled.
"I never had seen it done before."
Then Judge Laughlin took the witness.
"Who asked you to take the three prisoners mentioned up from the holdover for indictment?"
"Clover or some other official."

"Clover or some other official."
"Did you see Wittrock's or Cumming's face?'

'Yes,'
'Did you notice if his head was bent to one "Did you see any defect about his eye?"

"No."
"Did you see his teeth?"
"Didn't observe them."
"Did you notice his nose was crooked?"
"Did not."

By Harvey: "Were the three men held in he holdover for several days, without a war-than twenty-four hours without a warrant?"

'No."

Dan O'Hanlon, Superintendent at D. Crawford's, testified to having received a request from Mrs. Root just after the robbery to find her son in the city, and see if all his wants were attended to. He said he called at the Southern and a man came down from the room where Fotheringham was detained. He asked to see Fotheringham, and was refused. He never tried again to see him.

CUSTOM OF RECEIVING STRANGERS.

I. D. Morlan, an ex-express messenger of the Adams Company, was put on by the prosecution to testify as to the habit of receiving strangers into the car on written orders from the route agents.

"Yes."
He then told how three or four years ago, Haight, a perfect stranger to him, came to his car at Holla, Mo., and presented a letter from Route Agent Barrett, ordering him to carry Haight. He admitted him and let him ride to St. Louis. Judge Laughlin moved to strike out all this matter about the Haight letter, but the motion matter about the Haight was overruled.

Mr. Laughlin then took Morian and tried to make him swear he had known Haight to be a messenger, or that he knew such a man was out and would present a letter somewhere along the route. To both these Morian returned positive negative answers.

"Was it the rule to have strangers identified when they brought these notes?"
"No."

"No."
"Did you know of any other such cases of strangers calling and being admitted?"
"Yes. One at Topeka and one at Las Vegas. I didn't know either of the men, but as they had written orders I admitted them." "And yet you served with the company nine years?" concluded Mr. Laughlin.

years?" concluded Mr. Laugnan.
"Yes."
D. B. Williams, express agent at Springfield, Mo., formerly a messenger, corroborated Morlan as to the custom of receiving strangers into the express car on written orders. He had done so himself once, the stranger bearing an order from Barrett.
"Did you as agent at Springfield in the fall of 1886 receive a telegram directed to Mrs. L.
B. Roote in your care?"
"Yes, sir."

Yes, sir."
Did you deliver it to her?" "Yes, sir."
Where was she coming from at that time!
"Mansfield." "And going where?"
"To St. Louis to see her son, David."

No, she returned home."
Do you know who composed the tele I do not." 'It purported to come from her son, did

"Yes, sir."
On cross-examination the witness told how he had, when messenger, carried Edward H. Roland and John Burns on letters from the route agent without knowing them. Roland presented a letter just before the train started.

W. W. Patrick, Cashier of the Ludlow-Saylor Wire Company, was called. He had known Fotheringham's mother for some years and had known Fotheringham. Three or four days after the fobbery the witness went to the Adams Express Company's office, and asked W. H. Damsell, Superintendent for that company, where he could find Dave. Damsell told him that Dave had concluded to seelude himself for the time in order to ald the company. Mr. Patrick then went to Parlor 84 at the Southern Hotel and asked to see Fotheringham. He was told he could not see him. On cross-examination Mr. Laughlin asked the witness: "How did you come here to testify?"

I was subpœnaed." Did you make any ob "I was subpossed."
'Did you make any objection to coming?'
'I said I didn't know why I was subpossed..
I knew nothing about the case.'
'You came here to testifyste the tyranny and iniquity of the Express Company?'
'I came here to answer any questions that were put to me.' Did you not make a peculiar trip once. Patrick?"

"There were peculiarities about all my I am talking about a trip to Canada."
I have made a number of trips to Canada." "But one in particular?"
"I have been to Canada several times."

"What made you so sangulne of the French spoliation claim being decided in your favor?'s "Saw a great deal in the papers."
At this point Attorney Harvey asked Judge Laughlin to produce the guns and cooking intensils found at St. Charles. Judge Laughlin protested that there was some food found there, too, which was quite rotten by this time.
"We don't ask for the food to be produced in court," said Mr. Harvey.
"I don't think we will have the provisions brought into court just now," said Judge Thayer. [Laughter.]

THE GENIAL "JIM."
Several papers sent by "Jim Cummings" in the letters to the newspapers were presented to the jury by Mr. Harvey. When the one was read wherein Cummings said he would go bond for a certain party and said his property was "$33,000 cash," there was a general laugh.
J. W. Harrington, Deputy Sheriff in charge of the Four Courts, was put on the stand by the Prosecution. He testified to the fact that "Cummings," Haight and Weaver were indicted while in the holdover without having gone into possession of the Sheriff.

Hartford, Conn., April 10.—The retirement of Gen. Aifred H. Terry, who is a citizen of this state, introduces a new factor into Connecticut politics. New Haven is preparing to give him the most enthusiastic reception on his return from Florida. The statement has been circulated at the capital, on apparently good authority, that Gen. Terry's name will be brought before the public for the Republican nomination for Governor. Should Gen. Terry consent to become a candidate for the nomination he would make a formidable contessant for the honor. There would be no possible doubt of his election should the convention be carried for him. The Alleged Attempt to Murder Sheriff Brito of Brownsville, Tex.

By Telegraph to the Post-Disparch.

Brownsville, Tex., April 10.—The Cronista of this morning has an account of an attempt to murder S. A. Brito of this city by his political opponents. It is stated that a Spanish grocery-keeper and leader of the opposition approached Theo. Cook in the market and offered the man $50 down and a much larger sum later to poison the Sheriff. The man said that as Brito always took his meals with his wife and children it would be impossible to effect this without poisoning all the family. A boy who overheard part of the conversation gave information to the authorities and on Cook being charged with the matter he contracting parties.

GOV. MOREHOUSE is considering applications for the extradition of two residents of St. Joseph who are charged with violations of the liquor law in Kansas. Ordinary violations of the liquor law of Kansas are classed by it expressly as misdemeanors, and it has not been customary ... $10 00 to honor requisitions for the surrender of 5 00 fugitives from justice in misdemeano cases. Where the law of both States is the same there may be some comity in their helping each other to enforce it, but an anti-Prohibition State is under no obligation to go out of its way to help a $1 00 Prohibition State punish petty violations of its peculiar laws. If Missourians make a business of violating Kansas claims of good neighborhood are then involved in the question.

A GREAT many judicious people sympathize with the opposition to the seventeen-million grab known as the direct tax bill. But merely voting against it is a different thing from the kind of oppositive committees make extra exertions to increase the entertainment fund to cover these additional expenses.

The first question to be settled will be the arrangement of the hall to accommodate the growth that it has been thrust upon the House in a bigh-handed way and to the detriment of other bills preceding it on the calendar. It may be true that the opposition has not been given a fair chance to show up the questionable features of the thing, and the lobby work involved in the undue precedence given to this measure. But displays of the coercive power of a minority to block the wheels of legislation entirely are not regarded with patience by the general public. The minority has succeeded in fixing public attention upon this bill and can well afford to let it get out of the way. They may get another chance at it with a presidential veto to help them.

Immediately after the selection of St. Louis for the convention all those who desired to attend the convention were invited to come forward and sign their names to a paper. The responses were greater than the leaders anticipated. Nearly seven hundred have already signified a desire to attend the convention and when the committee met yesterday they discovered that unless something was done to check the number it would soon increase to 2,000. The task of providing transportation for such a large number and accommodations for them in St. Louis as well; was more than the leaders bargained for or desired. Sheriff Grant, Congressman Cockran and others made speeches in favor of limiting the number, in addition to delegates and alternates, to 100.

Considerable piposition was made to this by drouth there was slow germination in soils not well pulverized, causing thin stands in such areas. Hence a superficial impression of condition was made which our trained correspondents saw at once was deceptive and that the impairment of status was slight. Later rains improved the prospect. In the South the soil was in good tilth and full growth generally good. In the Middle States the seeding season was moderately favorable, though in some places the soil was dry. In California, with some exceptions, a very favorable season for seeding and germination is reported. Drouth in Oregon delayed plant growth."

Only partial winter protection was enjoyed in the Northern belt. The variable temperature of March seriously injured the plant in the Central States of the West and some loss from winter killing appears even in Texas. On the Atlantic coast the winter injury was very slight. South of Maryland the temperature was mild and favorable. The present appearance of the crop is quite unfavorable. As the spring is late, and the present growth of late sown comparative repeatures of present condition is 52, lower than in recent years, excepting only in 1883 and and and 1885, when the averages were 80 and 76 respectively. Last year the Legislature spent $55,000 in canal improvements. The incentive for yesterday's meeting was the opposition of certain Senators. President Alexander I. E. Orr started the proceeding by speaking for the bill. He said that the present bill was opposed by counties distant from the canal. Senator Kellogg wanted it replayed out anyway as a factor in New York's commerce. Mr. Orr thought far-sighted, men would believe that canals are regulators of railroad freight rates.

Mayor Hewitt and Orlando B. Potter, in letters, backed up the bill, and Mr. Edwin R. Livermore offered resolutions to the effect that the merchants of this city "request and demand the passage of the bill." Ex-President Herrick, in supporting the resolutions, declared that he was a Republican, but if the bill was opposed by the Republicans in Albany they could be assured that the State would be lost to them this fall.

David Bingham had resolutions adopted protesting against another bill in Albany which gives the Legislature the right to fix grain elevitor charges. traitorous.

This is regarded as a death blow to the Francis boom, as Francis' friends had made strenuous efforts to secure the election of Central Committeemen who favored an early election of delegates to the State Convention. It is even stated that Maj. John B. Breathill has had his runners at work in the various townships to secure this end. This the Major denies. It is a fact, however, that he has been in Saline County for about a week and that he does not deny being an advocate of Francis for the governorship.

The Husband Discharged. The Court of Appeals to-day reversed the a fair and square fight between Francis and those opposed to him. Hall, the Francis candidate, was defeated by Mr. Duggins by 140 votes, and the Francis candidates were defeated in the county. Mr. Duggins and his friends are favorable to Glover and opposed to Francis. Reliroad Commissioner Breathitt, who has hitherto found nothing to do in Jefferson City but draw his salary, has made several trips to this county recently in the interest of Francis, and has been here for the last five days working up that interest. Mr. Breathitt says Francis and Rainwater secured his nomination for Railroad Commissioner and he is now paying judgment of the Lawrence County Circuit Court in the case of C. E. Greenup, who was convicted and fined $250 for abandoning his convicted and fined $250 for abandoning his wife without good cause and neglecting and refusing to provide for her. The testimony showed that the husband had written to his wife after the separation asking her to join him at Peirce City. The Court of Appeals holds that there was not sufficient evidence in the case to support a conviction, that an erroneous instruction was given to the jury and that the husband should be discharged.

An Artistic Performance of "Lorle" in Ger-

Olympic stage this season. The play chosen was "Town and Country," more familiar to name of "Lorle." The story is that of a simple Black Forest maiden who is wooed and won by an artist, who takes her to a great city, where he is a court favorite. Here the naive manners of his rustic bride lose their charm; he falls under the spell of a court beauty, neglects his wife and gradually drifts away from her. The young wife, devoted to her husband, is slow to believe that his heart has been turned from her, and ascribes her unhappiness to her own shortcomings. The arrival of her father to take her back to her forest home and the tale he tells of her husband's course opens her eyes and she determines to leave him. After writing a pathetic letter explaining her absence she is about to depart, when her husband returns te his home, for the first time discovers his wife's misery, and his old love sence she is about to depart, when her huband returns te his home, for the first time discovers his wife's misery, and his old love reasserting itself in full force, begs her forgiveness, and with her abandons the city for the Black Forest, where he found his bride.

The simple play is admirably put on the stage and all the characters treated with remarkable success and delicacy of feeling. The character of Lorle, the heroine, was most touchingly portrayed by Miss Lill Petrl, the artiess, true-hearted village maiden being pictured to the life, while her voice was most admirably adapted to the German pictured to the life, while her voice was most admirably adapted to the German folk songs, which were greeted with great applause. Hugo Ranzenberg, as Reinhard, filled a difficult part excellently, while Gustav Kober, as the landlord, was a lifelike model of the rough, affectionate German peasant. Eugenie Schmitz as Baerbei, and Herman Haak as Lieut. Von Werden wont through their parts with great spirit, and went through their parts with great spirit, and been adjusted. The oil company weakened polstrict were also on hand. Mr. Baggos told the Sergeant that there was no need for all the men, and that the three mounted men and two other officers would be sufficient. Accordingly Sergt. Hennessy withdrew with seven of his men, leaving Officers Palmer and McDonnell to stand watch with the three mounted officers. As on yesterday the police were told to make no attempt to stop any of the wagons from going out, but to follow every coal-oil tank wagon which attempted to leave and arrest the driver when he attempted to deliver any oil. The gasoline tank wagons, which delivered oil for heating purposes only, were not interfered with or molested. Inspector Baggot merely insisted that no illuminating oil should be sold out of the tanks, as the law required that it should be inspected in the barrels or boxes. He could not and would not inspect oil in the tanks as it was contrary to law. Shortly before 11 o'clock. Mr. Baggot told the remaining officers that their services were no longer required. He said the troble had been settled. The Waters-Pierce Company, it appears, consented to abandon their tank wagons and delivered from these barrels. This they did. Huge stake wagons containing from three to ten barrels were started out and the oil delivered from these barrels. This closes the coal oil war, and the handy and ornamental tank wagons will have to be shelved for the unsightly but legal stake wagons with their ooal oil barrels.

Your Turn Now.

The trade temperature is going up and up.

Wanamaker's doors will be kept wide enough open to let it in, and plenty of the Very Best Clothing.

The prosaic part of this Spring's business isn't to be found in the goods. That's certain.

We never had such pleasure in putting style and needlework into cloth. It didn't need grit one bit more than wit to choose out from the legions of handsome fabrics the manufacturers brought us the handsomest in stripes, plaids, mixtures and happy combinations of color that are on our counters to - day in Spring Suits. You'll like them. We should put a discount on your bright judgment if we said otherwise. It'll give us a tighter hold on your good will as well as enjoyable work to sell them.

Our Spring Oversacks stand on the high platform of as good as made-to-measure. You can get as good as ours in that way if you go to a tip-top merchant tailor. We're fearless enough to say-Don't take one that doesn't fit as if made for you. Your choice rests solely on whether you want luxury or not. That controls the prices. You and we know that prices control trade. That's the very thing we're after.

Are you willing to pay the least? Come to Wanamaker's!

Wanamaker & Brown 210 and 212 N. Broadway.

We're equipped for tai-loring-to-order. Nearly 1,000 styles of goods.

DIABETES.

Dr. J. Seegen, Professor of Medicine at the Upis versity of Vienna, in his celebrated work on diabeted meilitus, just published, sava; Of all remedies in my large experience with this disease, and the many experiments which I, as well as such prominent men as anger, Fleckles, fliawesek and others have made, Carlsbad Water deserves to be placed in the first rank. All of the above writers agree with me that the use of the Carlsbad Waters exerts a very beneficial influence in Diabetes. I have in the gourse of many years treated a very large number of patients suffering with the disease, and have, with great interest, noticed the effect of Carlsbad Water in reducing the amount of suzar. My invariable experience has been that almost without exception an improvement was marked and noticeable during and after the use of the waters, even where no strict diet was observed.

PROTECTION'S APPEAL.

The Circular Issued by the Irish-Amer Protective Tariff League.

ph to the POST-DISPATCH. NEW YORK, April 10 .- The Irish-American Protective Tariff League of this city has we are threatened with an issue so our right to live by honest labor, but it also involves the life of this Republic. There are in this country to-day two gigantic political parties struggling for supremacy. While we are not in duty bound to ally ourselves with any political party, we should at all times and in all contests hold over the heads of the political parties the rod of independent action, that we as well as all other citizens may assist in compelling them to do their duty to a form of government purchased at so much cost of blood and treasure.

"We but do our duty to our frish-American fellow-citizens when we call their attention to the nefarious policy of one of their political parties in trying to foist upon the workingmen of this country the self-same conditions that have made of him the wretched slave he is in every free-trade country, particularly England. To-day in every branch of industry you will find the English mechanic competing with his American co-worker. If free trade was beseficial he would certainly have remained at home and enjoyed its luxuries. We are threatened with the introduction of this same damnable system. Can we passively lie on our arms and permit any political party to introduce such a system into a country that has laid bare its bosom to receive our labor that has given us a refuge and guarantees us a home? We appeal to all men who owe their existence to the 'Land Beyond the Sea' to assist us in our work, to assist us in keeping the American mechanic untrammeled, to assist us in perpetuating the life of this Republic."

dren climbed up the mountain yesterday through the snow until they reached a miserable hovel with window-panes all out and the sashes filled with rags. The roof and sides of the hut were rotten. Entering they found a woman, coarse, dirty and repulsive, clothed in rags; a girl of 15 years with searcely any clothing and with bare feet, and two boys, one ten years and the other 8, both nearly naked. The children said they had suffered severely all winter. Their mother used to send them out in the coldest weather to get wood for fire. Their feet had often been frezen and the woman beat them cruelly. The boys led the officers to the back of the house where the skeleton of a horse was lyofficers to the back of the house where the skeleton of a horse was ly-ing. "CART GREASE" BUTTER DEALERS.

Recorder Smyth Sends a Grocer to the Peni

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Thomas Scholes, 4 grocer, pleaded guilty before Recorder Smyth in the General Sessions yesterday of selling rgarine in place of butter. The Re order said, after musing over his papers, hat he remembered that three su entences for the same offense were hanging cover Scholes. He sentenced him to three months in the penitentiary. Scholes said he expected to be fined and burst into tears. "This is pretty hard, Recorder, to send a respectable man to prison to associate with oriminals and thieves," said Scholes' counsel. "It is harder for decent people to be swindled." said the Recorder. "I am going to send every one of these cart-grease butter dealers to prison now. This business must be stopped. I have warned them and no more pleading ignorance of the law or of the -character of butter will be accepted."

DETROIT IS NO GOOD.

SO SAITH CAPT. ANSON, AND HE TELLS THE REASON WHY.

Bull Luck" That Carried the Detroite Through the League Season and the Fall Games With St. Louis—Anson Tells the Size of His Foot-Jack Ashton Wants Blood-Sporting Matters-Diamond Gos-

If Capt. Adrian Anson, the aged giant of the Chicago Base Ball Club, really means what he says, a question which is a very debatable one, by the way, his attitude on base-ball affairs might be expressed as follows: Supreme apathy towards all clubs in the League except Chicago and Detroit; and supreme hatred for the latter. The captain who is al-ways more or less full of boast and brag, was chock full of both when he was seen this morning by a reporter of the Post-Disparch.
"Captain," he was asked, "I suppose your club will win the League pennant as

"Yes, sir, Anson, Spalding & Company have mortgage on it and we'll get there, sure."
"Boston will be are und there, won't it?" "No. That is, Boston may be in the race s little and so will New York, but they won't have much to say. You see they can't win." "Aren't you forgetting Detroit?"

"What! Detroit will be nowhere. Why, they won the championship last year by the worst kind of a scratch.

by the worst kind of a scratch. They had luck that they didn't deserve and their luck carried them through your series in October, and that's how they beat you. Why, if they did not have the buil luck they had they never could have beaten St. Louis. Never would have touched you." "What do you think of the recent defeat of the Detroit by St. Louis for the world's championship."

the Detroit by St. Louis for the world's championship?"

"Well, St. Louis played a good game, but they don't deserve much credit for beating Detroit even as bad as they did."

"You think Detroit is weaker than it was last October, then?"

"Weaker; no. They are stronger than they ever were, but as I said before, that isn't saying much. They never were a good or a strong club, and if they didn't have the Devil's luck they never would be heard from. Their streak of luck has petered out, and now they'll get down to the place they properly belong—the bottom."

down to the place they properly belong—the bottom.

"The Chicago Club is not so very strong this year, either, is it?"

"It isn't, isn't it? Well, you just come out and see us play a few games with your world's champions and you'll change your mind."

"You lost a good pitcher in Clarkson; you'll admit that, won't you'll indinit that, won't you'll indinit that, won't you'll work in the property of the wedd. Nobody knows that better than we do."

"What size do you wear?" asked the Secretary.
"Fifteen," replied the Captain, as he placed one of his barges on a chair.

To-Morrow's Big Game,

The world-beaters will again tackle Chicago to-morrow at Sportsman's Park, playing the second and next to the last game of the series. second and next to the last game of the series. The Chicagos will probably put in Van Haltren, the California twirler, to pitch, and old Silver Flint to catch. The world's champions will have Nat Hudson, the Chicago boy to pitch and Jack Boyle or Milligan will catch him. These games are attracting widespread attention and will unquestionably draw big crowds. They gave the local public a splengid opportunity to judge of the Browns' abilities to cope with the biggest of the League clubs. Play will be called at 4 p. m. Jack McQald will umpire.

Charley Chats.

Charley Mitchell writes as follows to Rich ard K. Fox: "As regards my fight with Sullivan, I have nothing to say. I said I would prove he was not the terror he was supposed prove he was not the terror he was supposed to be, and I am satisfied. I don't think I shall a ever fight again, as I have family ties and have promised my wife I never would fight again. I have been fighting and boxing now for ten years, and I am satisfied to quit. I broke my left hand badly in my fight with Sullivan, and now I have two very queer hands. A man can't work without tools, so I shall leave all the fighting to my partner, Jake; he has got two good hands and a good heart, and is second to no one as a fighter. I shall come to the States with Jake about June, and perhaps go into business. If I am in good health and my hands get fairly strong again I might box a few men from ten to twenty rounds on your side the water, but the way! feel now I don't care whether I put a boxing glove on again or not, except it be a friendly bout with Jake. I have enough money and a splendid home and plenty of friends. What more do I want?"

A Fat Men's Nine

Mr. James V. Byrne is about to organize fat men's nine. He has engaged himself to play right field, and De Witt C. Steigers will officiate behind the bat. Joe Pritchard will serve in the pitcher's box, and Judge McCaffrey will play short. Mike Biley, the old-time crank, will cover first, and Col. Joe Carr will occupy Arlie Latham's territory. Charlie Schaff will look after center garden. There are a number of applicants to play second, but Mr. Byrne may place David B. Gould there. Mr. Gould will also officiate in the directory of the club. Jack Furber will probably guard Mp O'Neill's field. The nine is in process of formation, but so sanguine are the projectors of ultimate success that Mr. Byrne has formulated the following challenge to the Detroit club to play at Sportsmon's Fark next Sunday morning. play right field, and De Witt C. KIND SIR-Recognizing the inability of your team to cope with the St. Louis Browns, who wiped up the South with you, winning back the laurels loaned to you during the winter months, we feel it incumbent upon oursolves to challenge Detroit to a match game to take place at Sportsman's Park after the Brewns finish you up. Our team has recently been organized and is known as the St. Louis Avoidupois. I trust our challenge will have some weight and that you will, if you decide to play us, have your team out in full. "Ned Hanlon will be released by Detroit and sign with Brooklyn for $2,300 and $500 extra for his services as captain," says the Cleveland Leader. "Ned Hanlon has stopped bluffing and come to an agreement with the Detroit Club," says the New York Press of the same date. Hanlon signed with Detroit yesterday. President Day is becoming alarmed over the absence of Catcher Brown. "Big Bill" is still on the Pacific Coast and is likely to stay there. The New Yorks President heard that Brown was getting $3,200 for his work in California, and as this is more than he is worth to the local club he may decide to stay beyond the Rockies.

Manager Kelly has introduced a new wrinkle in beginning games. When the Louisvilles take the field the gong taps once, and all the nine players in single file march from the dressing-room to the plate. When the gong rings again they face to the left, and at another tap the players break ranks and go on a run to their positions.

Von der Ahe made Mutrle take water—something that Truthful James seldom does. In an interview he sneeringly remarked that the Browns as easily as did the Det troits, but that he could not get on a game with them; whereupon Chris telegraphed to Mutrle for dates for a series of five or seven games, the winner to take the gate money. James replied that circumstances prevented the consummation of his most earnest desire.—[Detroit Free Press.

The Detroit Club seems to have run u against a snag when it struck the St. Loui Club. The St. Louis Club is not as strong as it was last season, and the Detroits seem to be much weaker than the St. Louis team. The new men of the Detroit Club have not shown up as well as was expected of them. Manager Watkins had a long head when he refused to blay for the championship of the world. name of the "World's Champions."—[New York Sun.

A reporter was passing West street, near Green, yesterday afternoon, when he noticed the most curious sot of players it has ever been his lot to see engaged in the game. They were playing "rounds," and, as he passed, an old colored man was at the bat. His back was bent, and the kinky hair that showed through the top of his battered hat was white as snow. His scanty beard was of the same pure shade, and he looked like he might have been one of the horde of George Washington's body servants, still surviving. The catcher was a little negro, about 10 years of age, and blind in one eye. The pitcher had but one leg, and supported himself on a crutch, while he attempted to strike out the vonerable batter with drop and out-curves. One of the fielders had but one arm, while the only other player had a defect in his walk. But despite these drawbacks they were throwing their whole vitality into the game, yelling and screeching as if the championship of the world was at stake.—[Louisville Courier-Journal.

CONDUCTOR MARTIN BRINGS BACK HIS 16-YEAR-OLD WIFE.

Dress, Tells How and Why the Elopement Was Planned-Mr. Martin Return to His Train After His Bridal Teur-Mrs Martin Has no Fear of Her Father and Is Very Happy and Jolly.

A handsome, black-bearded man of 40 was tenderly bending over the planoforte in the parior of the Lindell Hotel this morning—not as a musician, but as a lover, thoughtfully rning the leaves for the petite figure of the young girl at his side. The waltz was one of Waldteufel's tuneful melodies, and no rapturous postlude more befitting a honeyon might have been chosen. So, at least thought the lovers, who were so engrossed with the melody that a Post-Dispatch re-porter entered and stood unobserved until the last notes of the music died away. Then the plano stool, also came forward; he dignified The man was J. B. Martin and the young girl, now his wife, was a brief two weeks ago tripping to Pope School in this city as Miss Cozie

Martin, it will be remembered, was the conductor of the train, popular alike with paswith the little black-eved daughter of Wallie week day Miss Ewen occupied Chapman Station, while J. B. Martin occupied the nearest available cushion whenever his duties would permit a temporary respite. On Sundays he would dine with Miss Ewen's family at their home at Chapman Station, and had come to be considered an old friend. And so it was that the weekly chat after dining and the brief moments snatched from duty while the train was flying over the rails were sufficient for friendship, and later for the love that laughed at locksmiths. On the morning of March 30 the lovers fied. The parents of Miss Cozie were wired, that they might not be alarmed, and now that the honeymoon is over bride and groom have returned to the city.

The child-wife was attired this morning in a becoming black silk that gave her petite figure a certain stateliness, but could not add a single day to her le years of girlhood. years of girlhood. If anything, she looss younger, and for the rest, her eyes and hair are very dark and her manner demure and youthful. But she spoke very frankly of the clopement, saying:

"Well, you see, I had been thinking the matter over and I was afraid father might not give his consent, as Mr. Martin was 50 much older than myself. He thought there would be no trouble, but I did not care to risk it, and so we made up our minds to get married and go on our bridai trip without telling anybody."

"Who planned the clopement?"

"We both arranged that. Of course," she added, demurely, "we didn't find many chances for conversation on the train that could not be heard by other people, but what we did say to each other was to the purpose. On the morning of the day we left town, I took my school books with me as usual, and was very careful not to let any one know what I was going to do. The younger sister of my husband knew that he was going to be married, but I believe she was going to be married, but I believe she was going to be married, but I believe she was the only one who really knew much about it, and I don't suppose she suspected that it would be a runaway match. After I reached the city there was no trouble in making all the arrangements for the trip, and so soon as we reached Chicago and were married I was happy as could be. O, but we've had a splendid time," she went on enthusiastically, adding naively, "nearly as nice a time as if father had given his consent and we had been married at home. I can't believe that story about father's being so angry, because I've known Mr. Martin for five years, and papa could not help but know that it was I he was coming to see all this time."

Mr. Martin was courteous, but looked much distressed at the idea of so much publicity attaching to his marriage. "I had hoped," he said, despairingly, "that people would have forgot
